

Key components of successful externships

- #1 Seek student input concerning career goals, interests, and expectations for the visit.
- #2 Keep student and staff informed of the best days/times and email/phone #s to reach you prior to the visit date.
- #3 Prepare a written schedule to provide structure and clarify time commitments.
- #4 Plan activities which help the student gain a better understanding of the career field; assign a short-term project for visits lasting two days or longer.
- #5 Provide ideas (materials, web sites, etc.) for resources students may use to do research in advance re: your organization, field specialty, current projects (i.e. terminology, etc.) or division.
- #6 Introduce yourself (interests, background, Cornell student or alumni activities).

Thank you again for agreeing to sponsor a Cornell student in an externship. While you have a great deal of latitude in tailoring the externship to fit your needs and workload, the following suggestions might help to make the pre-visit communication and extern experience go more smoothly. Also attached is a checklist to assist with your initial conversation.

Facilitating the extern/sponsor contact:

- Please provide updates to your contact information and preferred mode/time of contact to the Cornell Extern Staff.
- Students often find the initial contact with their sponsor somewhat daunting if they are unsure of your preferred method of contact (e-mail, business, home or cell phone) or the best times to reach you. Please confirm with us.
- Providing an email address (and check it regularly) during the contact period may assist in coordinating the externship.
- Notify staff and extern if you will be unreachable or on vacation between the first contact and the actual externship date(s). Sometimes students get nervous if they try to reach you and do not receive a response.
- Provide an alternate contact (assistant, colleague) with whom the extern may discuss logistics in your absence during the contact period.

Externship Scheduling and Logistics:

1. Students have been asked to call you by December 3 at the latest to initiate conversation regarding the date(s), structure, and other details of the visit. When the student calls, be sure to give your work schedule, confirm the exact hours you expect them to be with you/your organization, and give specific directions to your location (and other instructions such as parking, as necessary). While the student has been informed of the duration of the externship, as indicated on the enclosed form, an externship of any length of time that is convenient for you and the student is acceptable. Students who have participated in the Extern Program in the past consistently report that externships lasting more than one day are the most beneficial.
2. Discuss the students' interests in advance and tell the student the range of possible activities so that you can agree on an agenda that suits both of you. Please remember that the only information the student will have about the externship is the brief written description printed on your sponsor form.
3. If you think it would be helpful, send the student material about your organization in advance. You might also suggest other readings or sources he/she may use to research your work/organization if you think it appropriate.
4. If your office environment demands that the student dress in a certain way, it is both appropriate and advisable to mention that when the student calls. If there is not a "dress code", please mention your expectations with regard to student attire so you will both feel comfortable.
5. Please try to meet with the student when he or she first arrives to clarify the goals for the externship and to provide a written or verbal agenda for the time period. If the student will be expected to do a project, please explain it clearly and describe how it fits into your work. If the student will be shadowing you or meeting with others, it will be helpful for the student to know what your expectations are.

Insurance Coverage: Some sponsor's organizations will have liability provisions for visitors or volunteers with the organization, others may not. Feel free to ask your student to sign any liability, confidentiality or other forms that are standard for interns or other short-term visitors to your organization. We publish the following statement for student participants:

I understand that Cornell does not provide liability insurance for me as a participant in the Cornell Extern Program and that I should discuss with my sponsor what insurance coverage the sponsor provides for me, if any. I understand that I participate in the Cornell Extern Program voluntarily and separate from Cornell University, and that the University is not responsible in the event I suffer personal injury, accident or personal loss or for claims against me resulting from my participation in the program or with the sponsor.

NEW Student limited liability insurance: If your organization requires that a student have liability coverage to complete the externship, this new option will hopefully allow the student to participate.

Hold Harmless Agreement (The following is included in each student's signed statement of participation. If you wish to receive a copy of the more in-depth Hold Harmless form that each extern signs, we would be happy to send it to you.):

In exchange for my participation in the externship program, I, the undersigned, agree on behalf of myself, my assigns, executors, and heirs, to release, indemnify, and hold harmless Cornell University, it's trustees, officers, agents and employees for any and all liability, damage, claim of any nature whatsoever arising out of or in any way related to my participation in the externship program, including any act or omission of any third party (Rescue Squad, Hospital, etc,...), other than those arising out of the sole negligence of Cornell University.

It is Cornell Career Service's policy to publish this non-discrimination statement in programs involving students:
